4. The faces of 50: women’s self-portraits. Many self-portraits are self-portraits by women. Women have traditionally been more comfortable with drawing the features of their own face than those of others. This is partly because women have been more likely to receive training in drawing and painting. However, there are many exceptions to this rule. Many male artists have also painted self-portraits that are very realistic and accurate. Self-portraits by men are often more stylized than those by women. This may be because men are more interested in capturing the essence of a person rather than a detailed likeness. Artistic expression is not limited to one gender or another. The faces of 50: women’s self-portraits is a testament to this fact.
